CONRAD PREBYS AZTEC STUDENT UNION THEATER

A documentary about the barriers the undocumented community faces when seeking healthcare. Clínica de Migrantes paints a compassionate portrait of patients at Puentes de Salud, many of whom left their families behind to perform physically exhausting labor in America for meager wages, and follows the tireless staffers who treat around 10,000 patients each year with limited space and little funding. This film initiates the dialogue that health care should be a human right.

Executive director Dr. Steve Larson and his team must find a way to keep their practice running despite obstacles at every turn. Join us for this film screening followed by a Q and A with Dr. Larson.
