Tinker Grant Application Guideline

About Tinker Foundation Field Research Grant

The Center for Latin American Studies (CLAS) at SDSU is proud to have been awarded Tinker Foundation Field Research Grants. The field Research grant “is designed to provide budding scholars with a first-hand experience of their region of study, regardless of academic discipline” (www.tinker.org) Tinker Grants fund the travel and partial logistic cost for graduate students who are doing preliminary research in Latin America and who are pursuing or intend to pursue a Ph.D. The objective of this grant is to provide students with the opportunity to immerse themselves into their prospective fields to attain language knowledge, cultural background, initiate research contacts, network with institutions and possible informants and/or research participants, and gather preliminary research data. The grant is not intended to begin research but rather to provide the opportunity to determine the feasibility of long-term research and to establish the necessary connections to do so effectively. All awardees are required to complete a final report and/or presentation upon their return that details their intended research projects, the contacts established for long-term research, and the final outcomes of their research trips.

The Center for Latin American Studies will award Tinker Grants to qualified students doing preliminary research in Latin American (not including U.S. Latino populations) on a competitive basis. Faculty mentors must be affiliated with the Center for Latin American Studies. The research should last a minimum of two weeks but no more than four months. In order to be considered for this award the applicant must either be a doctoral student or have the intention to pursue a Ph.D. The intended travel should provide the foundation for the research associated with the doctoral degree. Students can apply for research grants of up to $1,000 to the US-Mexico border region, up to $1,650 to southern Mexico and Central America, or up to $2,000 in South America. The amount awarded will be based upon the total cost of travel, lodging, and daily meals. The amount received will be based on the submitted budget and determined by the Research Funding Committee of the Consejo Consultivo to the Center for Latin American Studies. If awarded the Tinker grant, ALL FUNDS MUST BE USED BY DECEMBER 31ST of the same year.

Students awarded a Tinker grant will receive 80% of the grant at the beginning of their research period; the other 20% will be disbursed once the students have returned, completed the travel expense claims, and presented their reports or presentations to the Consejo.

Working in Mexico on the US/Mexico Border

Students working on the US/Mexico Border qualify for the funding provided that their research takes place on the Mexico side of the border. Students must prove collaboration with a professional of academic institution within the Mexico border and must demonstrate the same time commitment to in-Mexico travel as students traveling to other parts of Latin America.

Additional Requirements

In order to be eligible for the grant, the applicant must attend one informational meeting where an advisor will go over the application requirements and will provide tips in order to complete a successful application. The Center for Latin American Studies will offer two meetings in the early spring of each funding year to ensure that all interested students have the opportunity to attend.

If your faculty mentor or adviser is not an affiliated faculty member, he or she may send an email requesting affiliation along with a current curriculum vitae to clasgrad@sdsu.edu.
