Need to satisfy your graduate or undergraduate language requirement?

LATAM 110: Elementary Mixtec I, MW 12:00—1:50pm with PROFESSOR ANGELINA TRUJILLO

Learn Mixtec, an indigenous language spoken in southwestern Mexico. Our classes are taught by native speakers from Oaxaca who are committed to the survival and preservation of indigenous language and culture.

SDSU's Center for Latin American Studies is proud to offer students across campus the unique opportunity to learn about the languages and cultures of Mexico and Oaxacan migrants here in San Diego!

Course material will include pronunciation, oral practice, reading, listening comprehension and essentials of grammar in a communicative context and through task-based activities.

Check with your academic adviser to see how you can fulfill your undergraduate or graduate language requirement with Mixtec!

For more information on our language courses, please visit our website. For further questions, contact Lia Wesson, Administrative Coordinator at lwesson@sdsu.edu.

LATAM 296: ELEMENTARY NAHUATL I, TTH 9:00-10:50AM with PROFESSOR EDUARDO de la CRUZ CRUZ

Nahuatl is a major indigenous language spoken in Mexico today by more than a million people, the language spoken by the Aztecs and other Nahuatlaca of Mesoamerica.
In Fall 2018, the Center for LAS will offer 4 units in Modern Huastecan Nahuatl as LATAM-296 on Tuesdays & Thursdays between 9:00-10:50am. The course is taught live by a native-speaking instructor in Modern Huastecan Nahuatl. Course material will include linguistic and cultural content related to Nahua daily life.

Spanish requirement for the Nahuatl course.

LAS UNDERGRADUATE ELECTIVE COURSES FOR FALL 2018

LATAM 307: Brazilian Music and Culture
Meets Mondays 4:00-6:40pm
Taught in English

LATAM 307 focuses on 20th and 21st centuries' Brazilian music and culture, highlighting diverse periods and music genres, both classic and contemporary. Discussions center both on the esthetic languages of the genres and on the cultural insights they provide, establishing meaningful links to historical and social aspects such as race, political turmoil and change, authoritarianism and resistance. Among other topics, the course will discuss the role, in the Brazilian music scene and society, of the genres and movements, Samba, Bossa NOva, MPB (Música Popular Brasileria), Pop-Rock, and Punk; as well as other genres such Hip-hop and Funk, Technobrega and Forró!

For more information on LATAM 307, please contact Professor Ricardo Vasconcelos: rvasconcelos@sdsu.edu

LATAM 307 fulfills GER Explorations of Human Experience-C [Humanities]

LATAM 420: Latin America through FILM
Meets Mondays 4:00-6:40pm

See Latin America through the lens of directors from across the globe! Explore the history and the development of cultures that were made after Columbus’s voyage to the New World. Witness how Indigenous societies, European transplants, and forced African migration to the Americas created the rich and varied cultural tapestry found in Latin America today—500 years after Columbus first set foot in the New World. Based on primary, secondary sources, power point presentations, and, more importantly, cinema film, this course will analyze the creation of the modern Latin American nations we interact with today.
LATAM 420 fulfills GER Explorations of Human Experience-C [Humanities]
